ARMY OFFICERS DRESS.

Proposed Reforms.

Writing to the Full Mail Gazette a correspondent says that the Departmental Committee, under the presidency of General Sir Charles Douglas, which has been inquiring into the cost of officers' uniforms, has now practically concluded its labours, and its report will be laid before the House of Commons. It is understood that several ways have been found whereby money may be saved to officers, and that several forms of uniform at present deemed essential will be removed from the dress regulations. It is understood that the committee will recommend that, in future, there should be but three forms of uniform for the whole of the officers of the army - full dress, service dress, and mess dress; so that, among other things, the practically useless frock uniform is to disappear. The service dress will be worn upon all occasions for which full dress is not ordered and this will, of course, be of khaki. It is to be hoped, however, that whatever changes in the form of the existing dress are contemplated, officers will not be ordered to provide themselves with it immediately, but will be allowed to wear out their present uniforms. In their zeal for clothing reform in the past, the War Office has, upon more than one occasion, suddenly ordered one type of uniform to be instantaneously discarded, and soundly rebuffed the substituted, thus putting officers to great expense for which there was no real justification. The recent order speedily rescinded - respecting the officer's sashes is an apt case in point.

FOR THE HAIR

Is the Best Preparation you can use.

WHY?

BECAUSE without it the hair becomes dry, thin, and brittle, and this is the nearest approach to the natural oil in the hair, the loss of which causes baldness.BECAUSE you must keep the hair well moistened and soft, or you will soon lose it.BECAUSE it is to keep the hair soft and silky.When applied to the hair it penetrates to the roots and keeps them in the best condition.Children require it to keep the hair soft and healthy. It is sold in a tin of 1/6 and a bottle of 1/3. Of course, the tin is the best value.

BROTHERS.

An Open Letter.

In an amusing open letter, "To Sisters on the Treatment of their Brothers," which appears in the Woman's Magazine, John Payne says:

"Knowing nothing about ordinary girls, but having six sisters of my own, I think that I am in a position to give a few useful hints to girls in their daily intercourse with their brothers."

"Now, first, you will kindly remember that a brother's one ambition in life is that his sister should be a credit to him. So that, when severely commending on her appearance after she has just returned from a long walk and is feeling tired, hungry, and drowsy, he is only carrying out his ambition and is in a well-deserved position to point out what her appearance presents to him as a credit to him."

"When he gently points out that her hair is loose, and there is a tag hanging down behind, she should not answer him back by saying that he is to mind his own business; that she can never find her hairpins, as he is always stealing them to clean his pipe with. She should remember that hair-pins are one of the finest pipe-cleaners in the world, and that if he does take one or two, she must not, out of revenge, go and empty a packet of them in his bed."

"Again, if he further remarks on her complexion, which has become slightly flushed with the exercise she has recently taken, there is no need for her to throw round on him like a—like a cat, shall I say?—and in a loud voice declare that she does not care if her face is hot and, further, that she does not and will not use powder.
Like that horrid girl So-and-so for whom she is aware that he has a tender penchant.
It is not kind, besides, it irritates him."

"Also, too, her dress has the appearance of having gone through a mangle—at least that is what he says it looks like. A tape is showing here, a button off there. He tells her this all in the same calm and generous mood, but there is no need for her to burst out crying, and say that she will never speak to him again. He has only spoken for her good, and it is quite unnecessary for her to pull his hair. A man hates having his hair pulled."

"Then, as regards his friends—men friends, I mean. When he first brings them to the house, don't criticize their looks. And, remember they are his friends—not yours. Wherefore, smile, or, if you wisely, but not too well. On the other hand, you must not object to his criticizing your acquaintances. He has always your interests in view, and an eye to the artistic effect. Therefore, choose your friends according to your brother's taste in looks. Nothing distresses a brother so much as when a sister brings plain girls to the house. Besides, you will not find it easy to get a pretty friend's brother will take his sister for a theatre and other entertainments, but with a plain one never."
